NEWS AND NOTEWORTHY

A Year of Mercy with Pope Francis by Kevin Cotter

Jesus' Work Is Personal

God gets involved with our misery, he draws close to our wounds, and he heals them with his hands; he became man in order to have hands with which to heal us. Jesus' work is personal: one man committed the sin, one man came to heal it [for] God does not save us merely by decree or by law; he saves us with tenderness, he saves us with caresses, he saves us with his life given for us. — Homily, Domus Sanctae Marthae, October 22, 2013

Reflection: God gets involved with our misery, if we let him. God is willing to heal us, if we reveal our wounds to him. Are you open to his tenderness? Will you let him lead you?

"Jesus is waiting for us to visit him. It is, in a way, a return of his visit to us in Holy Communion, and it is a proof of gratitude, an expression of love, an acknowledgement of the Lord's presence.[62] It is a continuation of our act of thanksgiving for the previous Communion and a preparation for the next."
